- Love's Coming. Break into bentiful blossoms,
  Suds of the suony May.
  And sing, my robin and bue-bird,
  Your sweetest carol to-day—
  For my love has written a letter,
  And the world is all in tune—
  the is con ing with the roses
  In the fairest days of June.
- I am counting the days between us.
  I am counting the moments and hours,
  Teiling may beads, like a solemn nun,
  On a resery of flowers:
  For he said, when the buds of the roses
  Are flushing in royal red,
  Me is coming to claim a promise,
  Me wonder what I have said).
- Break into songs and blossoms,
  O birds and buds of Spring;
  Lilles, scatter your fragrance,
  And sweetest song-birds sing;
  And skies, drop roiden substine
  In the beautiful days of June,
  For my love is coming to see me,
  And the world is all in tune.

The Years.

A shimmer of white roles—a pall just after— Then, bits of song and victors' shout, anon: Now fast, now slow—with mingled wall and laugh-The motley, weird procession moveth on— And still from out the shadowy, dim "To Be " Another—and another year glides steatibily.

O phantom train! Your chill breath dulls our pleasures;
Your foot; rints leave the furrows and the frost;
With rothless hand ye gather up our treasures
Till in the mist of "by-gones" they are lost!
And darkening windows, closing portals show
The daughters of sweet harmony brought low!

And yet, O passing years! O grim procession:

A lavish store ye tossed into our hands—

Eare gems, tried gold—alf yes! we make confession.

Your gifts well balanced all your stern demands.

And many an effered prize our idle fingers lost

Because, all heedlessiy, we slumbered at our post! Then fair, fresh, laughlog year, with light steps gliding

Out of the mystic shade—the veiled Unknown—
In childike fath, in patient hope abiding.
We place warm, welcome hands within thine own? Your touch may thrill and brighten—or may loose the silver cord; It matters not—we know thee—an envoy from our Lord!

Winter Song.

When ict ies hang by the wall.
And bick the shepherd blows his nail,
And Tom hears logs into the hall,
And milk comes frezen home in pail;
When blood is nipped and ways be foul,
Then nightly sings the staring owl,
To-whoo,
Tn-whit, to-whoo, a merry note,
While greasy Joan doth keel the pot.

When all aloud the wind doth blow.
And coughing drowns the parson's saw,
And birds sit brooding in the snow,
And Marian's nose looks red and raw;
When roasted crabs hiss in the bow!
Then nightly sings the staring owl,
To-whoo;
Tu-whit, to-whoo, a merry note,
While greasy Joan doth keel the pot.

[Shakespeare.

SCRIFTURE NAMES.--The power of associa-tion is very clearly shown in any attempt to give the true names to familiar Scripture characters. Although in such cases we may contend for the truth, having no prejudices to serve, but simply desiring to give each name as its owner knew it, yet we find every sensibility rising up to resist the effort. We have known the name in a certain form of writing and sound, and we must keep it in this form, for around this form have clustered a thousand interlaced thoughts, which are part of the compacted structure of settled opinion. Here is a case where to go back to the truth would destroy the truth. For example, what associations, involving correct judgments, views, and sentiments, would be shattered if the familiar name of Solomon were changed to Shelomob. The new name would not take up the tithe of the meaning to the ear mind. And yet the new name would be the old name. The Queen of Sheba never knew Solomon, but she knew Shelomoh. What devout Bible-reader would recognize 11%; Graniteville, 12c. in Hebel the pious son of Adam who first felt the murderer's stroke? What religious Rebecca of to-day would be delighted with the name of Yitzchak, or imagine that he ancient namesake was Yitzchald wife.

stunson be shorn of of his strength if we called him, as Delilah did, Shimshon? And what consternation we should produce in the modern Israel if we should speak of the invasions of Tiglat-pal ziva, Sin-akhi-irib, and Asshur-akhi-idin? And could we detect an old friend in Nabu-kuduri-utzur?

But still worse should we fare if we at-tempted to be purists in the New Testament. Think of calling that dignified apostle who was so prominent in the Jerusalem council by the name of Yauyakov, which is about as near as our letters can express his Semitic title! Could we ever persuade ourselves to call the beloved disciple Yechochanan? And vet in all these cases our names for these worthies (and unworthies) are as far from the mark as would be Goath for Goethe, in which substitution some rural districts indulge.

So we see how in some cases it is right to be wrong. It would be a monstrous pe-dantry that would call things always by their right names. If you do not believe it, read out to a congregation the first verse of the first chapter of Isaiah correctly, thus: The vision of Yeshangyahu, the son of Amotz, which he saw concerning Yehudhah and Yerushalaim in the days of Nguzziyahu, Sothom, Achaz, and Sechizkiyyahu, kings of Yehudhah"! In what frame of mind would the congregation be for the rest of the chapter?

What would be so manifestly wrong for Hebrew names would be equally wrong for Greek names. The principle is the same. Hence we object to Mary Magdaleny for Mary Magdalen, and Eu-nee-sy for Eunice, and Philec-mon for Philemon; all of which names are in daily use by us, as Magdalen, Eunice (Yunis), and Philemon (with stress on the first syllable). Would we call our distinguished ex Moderator Dr. Philemon Fowler? Young ministers are sometimes puzzled as to the pronunciation of Scripture names. It is a good, safe rule to follow usage, and thus not mar our associations. Let us know what they are, and call them what they are not .- Our Monthly.

THE AUTHORSHIP OF "COUSIN SALLY DIL-LARD."-The venerable Thomas P. Atkinson writes a letter to the Petersburg News refuting the generally-received impression that the author of " Cousin Sally Dillard" was a gentleman of North Carolina. He says: Be it known, therefore, by every North Carolinian and Virginian, and by "all the rest of mankind," that the late Richard Claiborne, formerly of Dinwiddie counsaid county to Harper's bridge, on the Nottoway river, was the veritable author of this celebrated narrative of a scene which is said to have been witnessed in the old District Court of Brunswick county, in this State, is which Judge Tucker presided.—

These chromes are from the same mother-heart and artist-hand that produced Wide Awake and fast Asleep, and being larger pletares (11x13% inches, or 20 square inches larger, each) should easily sell in the picture-stores for $12, being chromo-lithegraphed by the same Parisian artist; but they are the sole property of the Christian Union, and will not be offered for sale anywhere, and can be obtained only in connection with the CHRISTIAN UNION. PRICE FOR MOUNTING AND DELIVERY.

Either pair of these elegant picture premiums will be presented to every annual subscriber to the CHRISTIAN UNION. The additional price for mounting and free delivery to the subscriber will be 50c. The picture-premiums thus presented will be strongly mounted on stiff card-board, sized and varished, ready for framing.
